MISCELLANEOUS READING. [COMMUNICATED. TWILIGHT MUSINGS.

A link of the chain that bound us is broken,

One loved and most precious is flown; Our fireside now is silent and sad, The light of our home is now gone! Gone from us is she? oh! say not it's thus! The bright spirit is hovering nigh; And o'er the sad ones now left upon earth,

It is watching most lovingly. And much do I love at the twilight hour To gaze on the heavens so fair:

For a soft, sweet voice then cometh to me, And it whispers behold! she is there! Aye! oft when I gaze on the star-lit sky, Sweet sounds come gently to me, And I scarcely dare breathelest I lose one sweet

Of that heart stirring melody. I think I then hear a joyous voice, Swelling the angel choir; And I dream I see that gentle band

Touch the strings of a heavenly lyre.

Oh! if I ever should wander away, To tread in sin's direful track; That much loved voice will follow me near, And bid me to hasten back. Now it bids me to look to that "better land."

Where she with the Saviour doth live; While on earth we should join the conquering band, Who praise through eternity give. Oh! be thou near to welcome me, mother!

Be with me through life's stormy hour!

And oh! blessed Saviour! I pray thee impart,

Thy smile and thy presence with power! THE LEGISLATURE.—Some one has given the Virginia Index a short description of our law makers in the Honse of Delegates .-From a hurried glance at the names, we find that there are 52 farmers in the House; 51 lawyers; 15 merchants; 11 physicians; 5 Pen; and last, though not least in excellence, the ex-clerks; 4 hotels heepers; 3 mechanics; 3 standard Albata Pen, known for many years us | editors; 3 ex-merchants; 2 ex-sheriffs; 1 literary gentleman; I politician; I tobacnist; and one speculator in general. One hundred and seven of the members are married, thirty-one are single, and thirteen are widowers.
